Guest Faculty:

Bruce Goldberg, MD, has devoted his professional career to improving population health and the organization, delivery and financing of health and human services. He is currently a Senior Fellow at the Center for Health Effectiveness at the Oregon Health and Sciences University. Prior to that, he served two Oregon Governors as the Director of the Oregon Office for Health Policy and Research from 2003-2005, Director of the Oregon Department of Human Services from November 2005 through February 2011, and then was the founding Director of the Oregon Health Authority from February 2011 through 2013. Bruce led Oregon's nationally-recognized health reforms, transforming Oregon's Medicaid system to one based on a model of coordinated care and population health improvement. In addition, he established Oregon's Healthy Kids program providing health coverage for all children, modernized Oregon's antiquated mental health system, and transformed the delivery of public human services to enhance efficiency and effectiveness.

Alisha Fehrenbacher, MHA, is Vice President, Health Systems Strategy for Empire Health Foundation. She oversees the Foundation's efforts to achieve the Triple Aim of better health, better care, and lower costs. Dedicated to health care reform and experienced at community activation and collaboration, Alisha was the founding CEO of a non-profit health collaborative and neutral convening organization serving a diverse tri-county regional community in Oregon, where she started and ran a community-driven health plan, developed a robust community health workforce hub and a founding member of the regional health council ensuring a local voice and footprint on statewide health reform. In addition, she served as a system executive to help refine the framework for strategic thinking and decision-making for a regional health system, providing proactive execution of all strategic transformative and population health improvement initiatives and provided oversight of the health system's community benefit and wellness departments. Holding Master's degrees in Health Administration and Geriatric Health, she is a Fellow of the American College of Healthcare Executives, the nation's leading professional society for healthcare leaders.
